

Greg Mitchell and Brad Garie Win Fall Classic Click Schreck Secures PR&GA Angler of the Year for 2012

Volunteer fireman Greg Mitchell proved you don't have to have a lot of sleep or a lot of brain cells to win a bass tournament! After spending several days in Wildwood with his fellow fireman, killing many brain cells with Mai Thais and other cocktails, Greg made his way back to Picatinny Arsenal on very little sleep to meet up with Brad Garie and run away with the final bass tourney of the 2012 PR&GA Trail. They found the lake nearly 3 feet low, which made launching and trailering boats challenging, but not catching bass. Greg started their morning off right with a 5 pound sow that inhaled his 7" Culprit worm shortly after the start of the tourney. He and Brad continued to add to their limit of bass throughout the morning finishing with an impressive 5 fish winning bag weighing nearly 13 pounds. Their bass were caught exclusively on Texas rigged worms.

There was no doubting the winning bag from the 2nd place bag. But the margin between 2nd and third was not as obvious. Cody Wabiszewski and Ryan Ordemann came in with a nice bag of 5 bass weighing exactly 11.67 lbs, caught on undisclosed soft plastics. This narrowly edged out Tim Prendergast and Jack Kinney for 2nd place. Tim and Jack brought in 5 fish just two 100ths of a pound lighter which earned them 3rd place. They got theirs on wacky rigged Senkos.

Not that there was any doubt, but Click Schreck secured his first PR&GA Angler of the Year Crown Sunday. Click and partner Mark Keck (2nd Place) showed remarkable consistency throughout the 6 tourney trail with 4 consecutive finishes in the top 2 spots. It also helped that in the 2nd tourney of the year, Click landed a 21.5" behemoth bass on Swartswood Lake which earned him PR&GA Big Tourney Bass of the Year.

Though the 2012 PR&GA Bass Tourney Trail has come to an end, it doesn't mean the bass have stopped biting. There is still plenty of fall fishing to be done before the ice sets in. Join us for one last Pickerel Tourney on Lake Denmark on Saturday 13 October. Contact Tom Hartigan, x5268, to register.
